

Servarus Corporation Opens New Health and Welfare Call Center and Processing Center in Northern Virginia

Servarus recently opened its new Health and Welfare customer service and processing center

Fairfax, Virginia, January 15, 2008 – Servarus Corporation a benefits administration company dedicated to redefining the entire benefits administration process, today announced the opening of its new Health and Welfare customer service and processing center in Northern Virginia. This new center will provide a number of functions in support of the Servarus benefits administration clients that include; telephonic enrollment, employee and employer customer service for all employee benefit questions, and enrollment fulfillment and processing.

As part of the opening, Servarus has also hired Linda Skolnik to setup and oversee the call center. Linda has over 20 years of call center and processing experience. She was Director of Customer Service at MCI where she ran four large call centers around the country in support of MCI's consumer business and was Vice President of Client Services at First Data Corporation. In addition, Linda has her license in Life and Health and has significant experience in employee benefits and benefits administration.

“Servarus is excited about the opening of our new call center and extremely pleased to have been able to have Linda support our efforts,” said Joe Zuccari Servarus President and COO. “Making health and welfare simpler for our employers and their employees is our overall goal and providing them with additional administrative support to get their questions answer and issues resolved is all part of our efforts to improve their experience.”
